God Leads Us To Respond To the Gospel

Community Confession of Repentance and Faith

Leader: Lord Jesus, We are blind, be our light; ignorant, be our wisdom; self-willed, be our minds.

Family: Open our ears to grasp quickly your Spirit's voice and delightfully run after his beckoning hand.

Leader: Melt our consciences that no hardness remain; make them alive to evil's slightest touch.

Family: When Satan approaches may we flee to your wounds, and there cease to tremble at all alarms.

Leader: Be our Good Shepherd to lead us into the green pastures of your Word, and cause us to lie down beside the rivers of its comforts.

Family: Fill us with your peace that passes understanding, that no disquieting worldly gales may dispel the calm in our souls.

Leader: The cross was upraised to be our refuge; your blood streamed forth to wash us clean; your death occurred to give us a surety; your name is our property to save us; by you, all of heaven is poured into our hearts; but we are too narrow to comprehend your love.

Family: We were strangers, outcasts, slaves, rebels, but your cross has brought us near, has softened our hearts, has made us our Father's children, has admitted us to your family Has made us joint-heirs with yourself.

Leader: O that we may love you and others as you love us, that we may walk worthy of you, our Lord, that we may reflect the image of Jesus Christ.

All: May we always see your beauty with clear eyes of faith, and feel the power of your Spirit in our hearts, for unless He moves mightily in us, no inward fire will be kindled.

Sermon Notes

Text: Psalm 1

Title: “The Biblical Robert Frost”

The poet said it, and the Bible agrees – there really are two roads in life, and which one you are on makes all the difference. Consider today your path, and consider the One who has walked ahead, obtaining righteousness and salvation for us.

The road away from God (v.4-5)

Be careful the company you keep

What seems exciting is really deadly

A time for intolerance

The road toward God (v.1-3)

Deep, multiplied blessings

Is it strange to “delight” in the law?

What you need to make it – no matter what comes

The One we need to travel the right road (v.6)

A path you cannot walk!

There is One – and One alone
