Text: Psalm 139:1-6, 13-16

Title: What Pro-Life Must Be

It is the issue of our time. It tears us apart socially and politically — and it is a dark shadow over us spiritually. What is the way to light? How are we as a church and as believers to speak to an area of such hurt and such struggle, socially and personally? How can we bring grace to bear on all of those who are flawed...but created in God's image?

What are we to say

What are we to do

Conduct spiritual warfare

Teach the value of each child

Teach the value of each child

So that we proclaim the grace of God available to all

Some texts for follow-up study and meditation this week:

- Jeremiah 1:1-5
- James 3:9
- Ephesians 6:12, 16-18

Where is difficult or intimidating to talk about the truth of God's word in today's culture, especially in areas of life and the children who are yet to be born?

Where does the church get its power? How should this guide us in whether we focus on politics, protests, or prayer?

How does it cost to be involved? How does that scare you?

What would the church look like, how would we be different, if we truly befriended the lost around us and showed them the value of every child of God made in His image?
